What The Survey Found

This year 162 schools participated in the MetroKids Independent School Survey. The survey helps parents to identify schools that best match their child's needs.

We publish the survey each October because many schools have a fall application deadline for 2010-2011 enrollment. Now is the time to interview school representatives, visit campuses and obtain recommendations from other families.

You'll find Pennsylvania schools here, and similar data for Delaware and South Jersey schools at www.metrokids.com (click: the Independent School Survey pencil graphic on the lower left).

Next month's MetroKids will include survey results from schools that mainly serve students with special needs. Some schools in this survey accommodate students with certain disabilities, as indicated by ● next to the school's name.

In what could be a reflection of the economy, 66 schools in this year's survey report enrollment declines, while 25 schools say their enrollment has increased. In total, enrollment at these 91 schools fell about 4 percent. (Many other schools provided data for this survey before school began, and were unable to say whether enrollment would rise or fall this school year.)

Median day tuition is $11,863, up from $11,393 last year and $10,733 two years ago. Median boarding tuition is $39,900, up from $39,500 last year. The typical school has 285 students, down slightly from 288 last year. Median class size is 16 in elementary grades and 15 in secondary grades, unchanged from last year. Thirteen schools are boys-only and 14 are girls-only.

Among schools reporting financial aid figures, the median school gives $489,000 in support, up from $450,000 last year and $400,000 two years ago. The typical school gives financial aid to 26 percent of its students, up slightly from last year.

Spanish is the dominant world language, with 146 schools offering instruction. Of these schools, 74 offer Spanish in 1st grade or earlier. Chinese is now offered at 22 schools, a jump of 2 schools from last year and 7 from two years ago.

The number of schools offering other languages declined: French is offered at 74 schools, down from 77; Latin at 67, down from 70; German at 11, down from 17; Greek at 9, down from 12; Italian at 5, down from 6; and Japanese at 3, down from 5.

Seven schools continue to offer Hebrew instruction, while other schools provide courses in American Sign Language, Armenian, Polish, Prima Lingua and Ukrainian. ♦
